

Invitation to the online symposium on November 5th, 2021:

Planet Earth and its children
Health for all children – how can that be achieved?

Aachen, September 2021

Dear Sir or Madam,

On the occasion of the 175th anniversary of Kindermissionswerk ,Die Sternsinger' (Missionary Childhood Germany), I would like to cordially invite you to an online symposium on the topic of child health worldwide, which we organize in cooperation with Missionsärztliches Institut Würzburg (Medical Mission Institute Würzburg). The international conference's key issue will follow the question: "Planet Earth and its children. Health for all children – how can that be achieved?"

We are pleased to welcome experts for lectures and discussions. The introductory lecture titled "From Tropical Medicine to Planetary Health – A Journey from Third to One World" will be given by Prof. Dr. med. August Stich, Head of Department for Tropical Medicine in Würzburg. Health challenges for children and young people all over the world and the question of how we can ensure a healthy life for people of all ages and promote their well-being (Sustainable Development Goal 3) will be the focus of the lecture by Elizabeth Lule, Board member of Save the Children International.

Project partners of Kindermissionswerk ,Die Sternsinger' as well as employees of Missionsärztliches Institut Würzburg will report on their work and invite you to exchange thoughts and ideas.

Find attached a detailed overview of the program or view it on the internet:
